Time window assignment and vehicle routing problems with stochastic travel time
Sifanur Celik – Eindhoven University of Technology

We aim to assign time windows to a set of customers and find the optimal route between them assuming that the travel times are stochastic. We consider to model the problem as a dynamic programming and evaluate the trade-offs between customer satisfaction and cost incurred to the decision maker.